High expectations, faith and persistence are the key ingredients to obtaining success. Renée Kennedy-Edwards, M.S., owner of Coaching

4 Success, has relied on these very principles for her own success. She says, "Getting to this point in my life was not easy. Nothing was handed to me to get me to where I am today."

Working through challenges and refusing to settle for a mediocre life motivated her to own her own business. "I realized you can't depend on anyone to make you successful or happy. It must come from within. The years I worked as a psychotherapist and business trainer taught me how to instill that same thought process in others."

Renée Kennedy-Edwards' passion begins in the boardroom, working closely with companies to improve their bottom line. Working with employees, she can improve productivity, employee retention and customer satisfaction as well as focus on more personal issues such as time management, life balance and fulfillment. Teaching more direct approaches to success comes naturally from someone who has experienced it—and succeeded herself.
